Dear Member:

It is no longer news that Austrian white wines, particularly those from the Riesling and Grüner Veltliner varietals, have reached startlingly high quality levels. So have Austrian botrytized and other sweet wines, which vie for excellence with the best dessert wine producing areas of the world. What has astonished us is the soaring quality of Austrian red wines, both those from indigenous grapes such as Blaufränkisch and Zweigelt, as well as wines using international varietals like Pinot Noir and Merlot.

Your Chairperson, Jeffrey Postman, has been working with Austrian wine-importer Monika Caha to present a representative sampling of the major styles and grape varieties used in Austria today. Monika is a trained chef, and she has proposed to provide us with a selection of typical Austrian “Heurige” food as appetizers. This will be a truly unique experience that will make us feel like we have stopped for a tasting of Austrian delicacies and wines at a vineyard-side tavern in the Austrian countryside.

Every well-rounded oenophile will want to learn about these world-class selections now coming from Austria. Please join us on Tuesday, November 29, at The Union League Club for a comprehensive tasting of the very best red and white wines made in Austria.

Sincerely,

Ivan Thornton
